SATURDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 23, 1833.

THE WARREN CONVENTION.—The Philadelphia and Allegheny county delegates arrived in this city, last evening, in the steam boat Beaver, having spent more than eight days in examining the country and collecting the information necessary to making the decision upon the question referred to them. We have heard it intimated that this decision would be made this day, but have not received the slightest intimation what it would be. We have, however, made up our mind to be contented with it, and to contribute our mite of labor to forwarding any measures which may be necessary to carry the decision into effect.

P. S.—Since writing the above paragraph, we have conversed with several members of the delegation from this county and Philadelphia, who informed us that, at a meeting of those delegations, this morning, they had decided, unanimously, in favor of the Mahoning valley and Akron.

We are much pleased with this decision, and with the unanimity with which it has been made. We are not the less pleased with this decision, because it is in favor of the rout which we advocated—for which advocacy, our motives were assailed, both to the east and to the west.

THE UNITED STATES BANK.—On Wednesday last, we published an article, headed "Where and what is the Treasury?" showing, very satisfactorily, as we thought, that Drafts upon the U. S. Bank, merely to sustain a tottering state bank, was illegal, and in direct violation of that provision of the Constitution which declares that "no money shall be drawn from the Treasury, except in consequence of appropriations made by law."

To day, we publish another long article, from the same pen, upon the same subject, and ask for it a careful perusal.—It does seem, to our mind, that, if the Secretary of the Treasury can dispose of the public funds, as he had undertaken to do, the provision in the Constitution is nugatory, and our only security, for the public money, is the integrity of the officer.—It, certainly, never was the design of the framers of the Constitution that millions of public money should be staked upon the integrity of a single man.

SEVENTEEN DAYS LATER FROM LISBON.

The Swedish bark Frithei, Captain Moberg, arrived this morning from Lisbon, which port she left on the 12th of October.

Captain M. unfortunately brought no papers, and but two letters, which are destitute of political news. One of them, dated October 9th, states that Captain John Herman Borg, Director of the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Lisbon, having been sent as a truce bearer to the enemy's lines, died on the way, it was said by cholera, but many suspected he met with a different fate.

We have had a long conversation with Captain Moberg, through an interpreter, and learn that on the morning of the day he left, October 12th, the Pedroites sallied out from Lisbon in strong column to attack the besiegers. A sharp engagement must have ensued, as Capt. M. heard a continual firing of cannon and musketry from morning till late in the afternoon. The result Captain M. of course did not know. The Pedroite troops were in fine spirits, and the utmost confidence was felt at Lisbon in the success of the sally.

Deserters continued to pour into the city, averaging from 30 to 40 per day. The principal part of the fleet was lying in the river. Two of the smaller vessels were cruising on the coast. A few days before Captain M. sailed, a Portuguese vessel, bound from some port in the hands of Don Miguel to Brazil, and loaded with salt and wine, was carried into Lisbon, with the flag of Donna Maria flying over that of Don Miguel.

Provisions were scarce at Lisbon, particularly flour. The surrounding country being in possession of the Miguelites, all the supplies for the city had to be brought in from sea. The country between Lisbon and St. Ubes had been completely devastated by the Miguelites, to prevent its affording any supplies to the capital.

St. Ubes itself continued in the hands of the Pedroites.

The presence of the Queen at Lisbon had produced a fine effect upon the minds of the people, both in town and country.

From the date of our last advices, until the 12th October, there had been no attack by the Miguelites, and no fighting, except mere skirmishes.

Latest from Lisbon.—By the Swedish barque Frithoif, Maberj, from Lisbon, 13th October, which arrived here this morning, we are furnished with the following. On the day of sailing, a heavy firing was heard, and it was understood the troops of Don Pedro had marched for the purpose of attacking Don Miguel, who was in a very precarious situation; large numbers of his army deserting daily to the Constitutional cause.—New York Evening Star.

From the National Gazette.

THE TREASURY AND BANK.

Objections or answers have appeared, in various journals, to my argument on the question, "What and where is the Treasury?" some of them founded on an obvious misunderstanding of it, and others on a wilful perversion of it. I will endeavor to set these gentlemen, or their readers, right upon this subject, so far as I have any concern in it.

To begin with the editor of the New York Evening Post. He asserts that I have undertaken to prove "that the Secretary of the Treasury has no right to remove the public money from one bank to another." However this may be as a general proposition, I have said no such thing. My proposition is, that the Secretary has no right to draw the public money from the Treasury, to put it in any other place, in any other way than that ordained by the Constitution. Does not the editor see the difference? If he does not, it is useless to dispute with him about it. If he does, we ask him, if this is an honest way of treating an important question, or an argument upon it, which was intended to be intelligible and fair? Whether my argument be good to prove that the Bank of the United States, in which the money is deposited by law, is the Treasury, is quite another matter, and a proper subject of discussion.

What says the Globe? That the "error of the writer lies in making more than one Treasury. The Constitution and the laws know but one, and that one is made up of all the banks or other places where the public moneys are legally deposited." If I have erred on this point, so has the editor of the Globe; for my opinion is precisely that which he has expressed; and so he will find it by looking again at my article. All I insist upon is that the place or places to become the Treasury must have the public money legally deposited in them; and that the mere fact of the deposit will not make the Treasury, unless the deposit was made by a lawful authority; and that when Congress has ordered that the money shall be put into one bank, or into several, this bank, or these banks, are the Treasury, exclusively of all others, until the same authority shall direct other places of deposit, which will then, in like manner, be the Treasury;—but that until the money is thus removed by law from the place or places in which it was deposited by law, it cannot be drawn from the Treasury, that is, from that place or those places, by any power known to the Constitution but Congress, in the form of appropriations, or by a direct change of the place of deposit. The first sentence of my article is in full accordance with the doctrine of the Globe; and his error has been in supposing otherwise. "Wherever the money of the United States is legally deposited, be it in one place or several, there is the Treasury"—not, there are the Treasuries. Can any thing be more explicit? There is certainly but one Treasury, and it is constituted by all the places in which the public treasure is deposited according to law.

It is in the conclusion from these premises that the difference between the editor of the Globe and myself will be found; but he comes to his conclusion by an assumption, which is utterly denied, and which he must prove before he can hope to reach the result he aims at. He says—"The Bank of the United States, in Philadelphia, is the Treasury, because the money was lawfully deposited there"—so say I—he goes on, "the Girard Bank is also the Treasury, because the Secretary of the Treasury having so ordered and directed, the moneys of the United States are there also lawfully deposited." This is the lame leg of the argument; an obvious non sequitur, the very ground in controversy being assumed. Let the editor prove that the Secretary may lawfully remove the money by his order from the place the editor admits to be the Treasury, to the Girard Bank, which no law has made or recognized to be the Treasury, or place of deposit for the public treasury, and I will give up the whole case. That Congress have this power cannot be denied, and they have exercised it by putting the money in the Bank of the United States; but that the Secretary has the same power, nay a controlling power over Congress in this particular, is the very point the Globe has yet to establish. It is indeed the only question between us. Hic labor—hic opus.

The Globe gives, as a quotation from my remarks, what he calls a new reading of the Constitution, that "no money shall be drawn from the Bank of the United States, but in consequence of appropriations made by law." My words are, that "no money can be drawn from the Bank of the United States, which is the Treasury as to that money"—that is, as to the money legally deposited there, and as to which the Globe admits that that Bank is the Treasury. I did not give this as a reading of the Constitution, but as my argument, which is essentially misrepresented. I have not stated it as a constitutional provision, that "no money can be drawn from the Bank of the United States, but in consequence," &c., but that in cannot be drawn from the Treasury, which that bank is admitted to be in regard to the moneys deposited in it, but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and that these moneys have been drawn without any such appropriation. If the editor of the Globe has hastily overlooked this clear and important distinction between my proposition and his manner of stating it, I trust he will now see it.

In reply to my enquiry—"What now secures the money from the absolute power of the Secretary," the Globe answers—"Probably the Girard Bank is as honest as the Bank of the U. States." Is this a reply to the enquiry? Suppose the Girard Band to be as honest and as safe as the Bank of the United States, and Mr. Schott to be a much better man than "one Mr. Biddle," the question still remains, untouched by these pretensions—What is to secure the money in the Girard Bank from the absolute power of the Secretary? The Globe carries out his argument with an observation which falls directly into my views of the case, and is particularly unfortunate for his object. He says, "the Secretary has as little personal or official control over the money as he had before."—Agreed; but what, according to the doctrines of the Globe, which I have controverted, is that personal and official control? Simply to remove it from the Girard Bank, as he did from the Bank of the United States, and put it where he pleases, be it in the hands of a bank or a broker, or in any other place, or with any other person. If the Secretary may draw it from the Treasury, where is the law, constitutional or legislative, which puts the least check upon him as to the place to which he may remove it? There is no such thing. The constitutional restraint is, that the money shall not be drawn without an act of Congress; and if this is unavailing for its security, there is no other. The language of the Constitution is peculiar. It is not that the money shall not be paid, disbursed, expended without an appropriation, but it shall not be drawn out. Does not a draft do this?

Other writers, in other journals, have taken the field against my argument; but to little purpose. One of them affects to be very facetious, and has the effrontery to allege that my "proposition is that the Treasury is not the Treasury, but that the Bank of the United States is the Treasury." This is such mere silliness, as to be unworthy of further notice. Another, about as sapient, says—"The notion of the immobility of the public funds, until they are expended, is as absurd as it is novel." Is this notion attributed to me? If so, let my article be read again, and it will be seen that so far from asserting this immobility, I have shown the manner in which Congress have provided that the funds shall be moved, when the public service or convenience requires it. It is not to be done by the Secretary of the Treasury, but on his requisition to the Bank, and by the Bank. As to the notions of this writer, about one Treasury and fifty Treasuries, he will find his answer in the remarks of the Globe, who agrees entirely with me, on this part of the case, that all the places of legal deposit form one Treasury. The remaining notions of this writer exhibit a total incapacity to comprehend the question or the argument, or a wilful blindness to them. It would, in either case, be lost labor to give them any attention.

I cannot but express my surprize that not one of these writers, who so confidently give to the Secretary the power to remove money deposited in the Treasury, has attempted to show whence or how they derive this power for him; where it is to be found in the Constitution, or in any act of Congress. Is not this a tacit admission that it does not exist—that no authority can be found for it? It has not been, and could not be pretended, that it is conferred by the 16th section of the act incorporating the Bank; for the power there given to the Secretary is clearly to order and direct where the deposits shall be made, but not to remove or disturb them after they are made.

Having thus rapidly passed over such objections to my argument as have come under my eye, and seem to deserve my notice, I may be allowed to present a more familiar view of the case, as it appears to me. Let us leave the banks out of it, as there is an interest or prejudice connected with their names, injurious to the perception of truth. Suppose an act of Congress had directed that a vault should be made under the Capitol, at Washington, and that all the public money should be deposited in that vault. Would not that, in the understanding of every man, be the Treasury of the United States? Could any money have been drawn or taken from it but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and by the forms of warrants and vouchers provided by the acts of Congress? Could the Secretary, by his simple order or draft, have sent that money to another place of deposit? Could he have constituted another place or places, the Treasury, for any purpose, or any pretence? If, instead of digging a vault under the Capitol, Congress have declared that the vaults of the Bank of the United States, or of any other bank or building, shall be appropriated to the keeping of the public money, shall be the places in which it shall be deposited, are not those vaults, in relation to the money thus placed in them, as much the Treasury of the United States, as if they had been dug expressly for the purpose; and is not the public money as safely and as sacredly guarded in them, by the same Constitution and the same laws, as would have protected them in Washington? We have agreed that if this money should be lawfully removed from this place of deposit, the place to which it is removed would have the same protection, because it would be the Treasury.

Whatever danger there may be in leaving the money in the Bank until the meeting of Congress, it would be much greater in having it perpetually at the disposal of the Secretary, as it must be, if he has the power of removal, which includes the power of directing the place or places where it shall be taken.

Allow me, in conclusion, to state the case as it appears to me now to stand. I take it to be established, by admission as well as by argument, that the Bank of the United States is the Treasury of the United States, as to the public moneys lawfully deposited there. These moneys are therefore in the Treasury. How then can they be lawfully withdrawn or removed? The Constitution answers only by "appropriations made by law," by the same authority that put them there, an act of Congress. The syllogism then is—No money can be drawn from the Treasury but by an act of Congress; the Bank of the United States is the Treasury of the money placed in it, and therefore that money cannot be drawn out the Bank, but by an act of Congress. I agree that if the removal of the money be lawfully made, then the place in which it shall be lawfully deposited will be the Treasury, for the same reason that the Bank was so; but the removal must be according to the law, or no subsequent deposit of it, can be so.

I have said that none of the writers I have alluded to have shewn by what authority they claim for the Secretary this power of removal. They have more wisely taken it for granted, or endeavored to get it up by a feeble argument of expediency. No such power can be drawn from the sixteenth section of the Bank Charter; that is too clear to admit of any such interpretation. What are its provisions? I. That the deposits of the money of the United States shall be made in the Bank of the United States, or branches thereof. Then comes the limitation of this enactment, to wit, unless the Secretary of the Treasury shall otherwise order or direct. What is he to order or direct otherwise? Certainly that the deposits of the money shall not be made in this Bank, and this indisputably relates to the money to be afterwards deposited, and not to that already deposited; which, being in the Treasury, it was well known, could not be withdrawn in any other manner than that prescribed by the Constitution. This interpretation, this limitation of the power of the Secretary of the Treasury, is unavoidable, unless we may be allowed to say, that a power to forbid an act to be done, includes a power to recal it after it is done; that a power to prevent the public money from going into Bank, includes a power to take it out after it has been put there. There is not a syllable or suggestion in this section of a removal or transfer of the funds by the Secretary for any reason, or on any apprehension of danger he may have or affect to have in relation to them.

Further—What is the Secretary to order and direct? That the money shall not be deposited in the Bank. To whom is his order and direction to be given? Could he order and direct the Bank that the deposits should not be made there? This order and direction is clearly to be made to the collectors and receivers of the public money for their government in depositing it as it comes to their hands. If, then, the only order and direction which the Secretary is empowered to issue is to be made and addressed to these officers, it can by no possibility have any relation to, or action upon, any money but that which shall be in their hands, and which they shall thereafter receive, and not to that which they have already deposited according to law, and which is beyond their reach.—There is not a provision or word in this section that gives to the Secretary an atom of power or control over the moneys in the Treasury, otherwise than in the manner prescribed by the Constitution.

I have no interest nor object in this decision, but the truth. If there be a defect in my argument, and it be decently pointed out, I will freely admit it; but I am not to be moved by coarse vulgarity, poor attempts at ridicule, or sweeping assertions and denunciations, such as have poured from some of the presses of New York. These weapons I neither use nor fear.

Sugar.—This is the most nourishing substance in nature. It affords more nutriment than meat. It enters into the composition of most vegetables, and abounds in the beet, melon, apple, and others which are the most palatable. It seems requisite for the sustenance of animal life, and sailors who are compelled to subsist only on salted meats, without vegetables, are afflicted with disease. Crews of vessels subsisted on it, during times of scarcity, and in such cases it has cured the scurvy. The first settlers of this country, in order to obtain it, used to boil up the chips of the walnut trees, which they had cut down. The Indians, on their long journeys, prefer it to any other food, because it will not corrupt, and they mix it liberally with their powdered Indian corn. The juice of the sugar cane is so pleasant, healthy, and nourishing, that all persons in the south employ it. The healthy negroes become robust, and the feeble recover their health by its use. Cattle, to whom the tops are given, grow fat, horses thrive upon it, and are said to be fond of it, while pigs and poultry fatten on the refuse. It is said that the plague has never appeared in those countries where it is most used. It is of great use to correct the acidity, and acerbity of other articles of food. It should be used with tea, especially by the nervous, the weakly, and sedentary, to prevent its deleterious effects. Loaf sugar, the finest of sugars, is frequently ordered by physicians, as a nutritious substance, and we have known individuals who, like Cassius, "had a lean and hungry look," to correct their habits by the use of sweet articles, and become corpulent and healthy.—Traveller.

Political Rumors.—It is said, that Dr. Sutherland finds more difficulty convert Gen. M'Kean to Van Buren, than he at first anticipated.

It is said, that Mr. Barry prefers Col. Johnston for the next Presidency, rather than Mr. Van Buren.

It is said, that if General Jackson enters for a third heat, he will get the votes of six States only.

It is said, that no Pennsylvanian can be elected Speaker of Congress.

It is said, that among political men, there is more dishonesty than ever.—Phil. Gaz.

Effects of the late Meteoric Phenomena.—The editor of the Columbia Spy says, in reference to the remarkable appearance of the heavens, on last Wednesday morning—

"Many of the people in the country were alarmed—some thought that the last day had arrived. A clergyman of a neighboring township, who is in the habit of holding social prayer meetings on Wednesday evenings, informs us that his meeting this week was composed of a large and extensive audience, which was such a remarkable circumstance, that he could attribute it to no other cause than the alarm which had spread on account of the strange sights in the morning. We have been informed, although we do not vouch for the assertion, that at a certain public house in this town, where it is usual to dispose of a good many drinks on market mornings, but one was sold on the morning mentioned, and no charge was made for that."

A gentleman, in the West Indies, who had frequently promised his friends that he would leave off drinking, without their discovering any improvement, was one morning called on early by an intimate friend, who met his negro boy at the door. 'Well Sambo,' said he, 'where is your master?' 'Massa gone out, sare,' was the reply. 'And has he left off drinking yet?" rejoined the first. 'Oh, yes, sare,' said Sambo, 'massa leave off drinking—he leave off two or tree times dis morning.'

Extract of a letter to the editor, dated

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Nov. 18, 1833.

Hollidaysburg, unless I am mistaken in my computations, will soon be one of the most flourishing towns in the interior of Pennsylvania.—Situated at the junction of the Juniata division of the Pennsylvania canal, with the Allegheny Portage Rail Road, not only the immense quantity of goods and produce, which will undoubtedly pass from east to west, and from west to east, must be here unladen, but our situation bids fair to make us the depository from which supplies will abundantly flow to a large portion of the southern and middle sections of the State. If our canal realizes the advantages I have in my mind's eye, Hollidaysburg must be the point to which Bedford and all the counties south and west will come. This is a strong inducement for men of capital to settle among us, who would, no doubt, realize very liberal profits on their investments. Many fine buildings are erectig, and the march of improvement is onward.—Hunt. Gaz.

Use of Forks.—A foreigner remarks, in his work on Great Britain, that an Englishman may be discovered any where, if he be observed at table, because he places his fork upon the left side of his plate; a Frenchman by using the fork alone without the knife; and a German by planting perpendicularly into his plate; and a Russian by using it as a toothpick. Holding the fork is a national custom, and nations are characterized by their peculiarities in the use of the fork at table. An affectation of the French usages in this respect seems now to be gaining ground in this country.

Dr. Thatcher, of Plymouth, (Mass.) favorably known abroad as a writer, and at times as an eminent surgeon, concludes some agricultural remarks in the Plymouth Memorial of last week, with the following piece of information, which may be of service to many of our readers:—

"That voracious reptile, the canker worm, has proved very destructive to many orchards in this vicinity the last summer, notwithstanding a free application of tar. Major S. Frazer, a skilful agriculturist of Duxbury, has invented a composition which proves a more effectual remedy against the canker worm than any other which has been before known. In consists of soft soap, whale oil, and common varnish, in equal parts. This is easily applied with a brush, and when repeated occasionally as it becomes dry, proves very effectual, and is not, like tar, injurious to trees. The same composition would probably serve as a protection against the apple tree borer, if applied in the proper season; and also, in protecting peach trees from the attack of the fly that deposits her eggs in the bark, near the root, from which proceeds the peach tree worm. I have applied it to my young peach trees, the past summer, and have no doubt of its utility, as no insect will encounter the odor and tenacity of this substance. In fact, the Frazer compound is, in my opinion, to be considered a valuable acquisition to our remedies against the annoyance of insects. Peach trees have not, in general, succeeded well in this place, the cold east winds from our sea board have a fatal effect on the buds in the spring. I have now adopted an expedient, which I hope will, in some measure, remedy this evil. I have surrounded the trees, near the roots, with a bed of sea weed, which I conceive will preserve the roots both from the effects of excessive frost, during the winter, and the influence of the vernal sun raising the sap too early in the season. The sea weed will, I think, retard the raising of the sap, and, of course, the development of the buds several days later, and the tree will besides derive beneficial effects from the alkali, with which the article is impregnated.

The daughter of Prince Polignac, who is a state prisoner at Hal, recently died. Her father was not permitted to see her, although she implored the government to permit this last visit of paternal love, and he offered to give his parole of honor, and submit to the close surveillance of a military guard. The policy of the courts does not, it seems, permit the performance of the most sacred duties.

New Machine.—Belfast, Maine, is getting famous for Yankee notions. The Journal says that Samuel Haynes, a shoemaker of that place, has made a machine for cutting shoe leather. It is constructed of two cylinders, rolled together, on one of which are placed knives in such a manner as to cut a side of leather into vamps and quarters as the leather passes between the cylinders. It is said one man, with this machine, can cut out more shoes in one hour than 12 men can cut by hand, in a day, 'and do it better into the bargain.' Mr. H. has a machine at work in this city.

A letter from Richmond states, that the Wills of the late John Randolph, of Roanoke, are to be offered for probate in the County Court of Charlotte, in the course of the present month. It is generally believed that, after a long course of litigation, the will of 1832—emancipating the slaves—will be established. Counsel has been engaged on the part of the slaves, and it is said that Judge Leigh, who wrote the will of 1822, has signified his intention to renounce all claims for himself under either will, and to testify to the fact that Mr. Randolph was not of disposing mind and memory when he made the last will.—Poulson.

A most superb and valuable present, from the author, was received by the Library Company of Philadelphia, last week, viz.—the works of the Rev. Charles Simeon, M. A., Senior Fellow of King's College, Cambridge, in 21 large octavo volumes. The arts of printing and binding have been exhausted, in order to render the work as elegant as it could be made—we have rarely seen any single volume of a small Souvenir so neatly done up: without being gaudy, it is rich in the extreme, being a model which we should be glad to see imitated by our book makers. To theologians it must prove most valuable; the following is the exact title:—"Horæ Homoleticæ: or, Discourses (principally in the form of skeletons) now first digested into one continued series, and forming a commentary upon every book of the Old and New Testament; to which is annexed an improved edition of a translation of Claude's essay on the composition of a sermon: By the Rev. In other words, about one quarter of the city was laid in ashes. The great fire in New York, in 1776, destroyed 493 houses or about one sixth part of the city.—Jour. of Com.

HARRISBURGH CHRONICLE—EXTRA. Published, Twice a Week, by Hugh Hamilton & Son.—Reports of Proceedings of the Pennsylvania Legislature.—The Harrisburgh Chronicle will contain a concise and faithful report of the proceedings and debates of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, which will commence its session in Harrisburgh, on the first Tuesday of December next. The Senior Editor will report in one of the legislative branches, and an experienced and competent Reporter is engaged to attend in the other. Such reports will be furnished as are calculated to put the reader in possession of a history of the Session of 1833 4; to do which, the faculty of condensation shall be employed for the benefit of the reader, even though it may sometimes be unpleasant to the legislator; for the topics that must, of course, come up for discussion, will be more numerous, important, and diversified than they have been heretofore, and there is every probability that the exciting questions that must necessarily be agitated in Congress, will also become exciting questions in the Legislature of the S ate, and add to the interest of the Session.

The proceedings of the Legislature of the State are full of interest to the citizen, and an intimate acquaintance with them is almost an indispensable requisite, when he comes forward on election day to exercise his sovereignty in the capacity of a voter. Hence every citizen ought to possess a fair and faithful report of the proceedings, and it is hoped that those who do not choose the Chronicle will take some other paper for this purpose.

A Partner Wanted.

THE Subscriber, being possessed of a valuable property in the Borough of Brownsville, in the county of Fayette, and state of Pennsylvania, in a public part of the town, consisting of two and a half lots of ground, bounded by Water street on the north, and the National Road on the south, say 150 feet on each, by 180 feet in depth, on which are erected one large three story Brick Dwelling House, one two story Brick Dwelling House, one Brick Foundry, one three story Stone and Brick Engine Shop; the whole of which are finished for the purposes intended. A considerable business has been and still is carried on in Manufacturing Steam Engines for Steam Boats, Mills, Furnaces, &c. &c.; the Castings for which are made at the foundry; also, other Castings, such as Grates, Stoves, and a variety of other articles, all of which are in demand. The subscriber is fully sensible that an extensive and profitable business could be carried on by an accession of Capital, he therefore wishes to sell one half the above described property to some person as a partner, who would have a few thousand dollars. Brownsville is well situated for such an establishment, being on the Monongahela river, which is navigable the greater part of the year: plenty of good stone coal in the whole vicinity, and in the neighborhood of a number of Furnaces, and as healthy a situation as any in the United States. A further description is deemed unnecessary, as any person wishing to purchase will come and view the premises.

JOHN SNOWDON, Jr.
Brownsville, Nov. 1833. [Nov. 16.---d1wwtf.]

LOOK HERE—A BARGAIN!!

INASMUCH as the undersigned wishes to improve his property, in various parts of the city of Pittsburgh, he avails himself of the opportunity of offering, to the public, that well known property, in Pitt township, three and a half miles from Pittsburgh, near what was formerly called the 'Black Horse Tavern,' on the Pittsburgh and Greensburgh Turnpike, viz:—10, 20, or 30 acres, or more, if required, with the improvements. A further description is deemed unnecessary, as those wishing to purchase, will call and examine for themselves.

I wish, also, to engage 15 or 20 laboring men, to clear a certain quantity of land, on the same premises, for which the highest price will be given for their labor. A person circumstanced to take the contract, would be preferred.

I also offer for sale, the three fourth parts of the three quarter lot, No. 220, marked off on Col. Woods' plan of said city, 60 feet front, on Front street, or First, running through to Second street, between Wood and Market streets, with the back rents, of which an indisputable title can be given.

DAILY PAPER AT HARRISBURGH.—The subscribers propose to publish a Daily Paper during the coming session of the Legislature, provided a sufficient number of subscribers are procured to warrant the expense. The necessity of a daily journal at the seat of government, impartial as to politics, and giving the debates of both houses, fully, faithfully, and daily, has long since been acknowledged. Such a paper cannot be sustained in Harrisburg, unless the citizens of other sections of the state come forward and aid in its support. At the present stage of our improvement system, and fiscal conserns of the commonwealth, a daily paper, the statements of which can be depended upon, published at the seat of government, must be a desideratum of all parties. We therefore shall expect that exertions will be made in every section of the state to procure us subscribers.

The Daily Pennsylvania Intelligencer will be printed on a half imperial sheet, for five dollars (in advance,) during the session. It will not only contain full and impartial daily reports of the proceedings of the Legislature, but will contain a summary of the proceedings of Congress, besides news and miscellaneous reading. ☞Post Masters and Agents procuring four subscribers, shall receive a fifth copy gratis.

FAIRBANK'S PLATFORM SCALES.

THESE scales are constructed upon an improved principle; are fitted up with great care by the manufacturers, and warranted to weigh with accuracy from half a pound to 12,000. Being placed in, and forming part of, the floor, the process of weighing is performed with ease and facility, while the space they occupy may be improved as a passage way or for other purposes.

The construction of these scales is such that they are little liable to derangement of wear, and their perfect operation will be guaranteed for any reasonable length of time.

The usual objection, that a new method of weighing cannot be safely entrusted to unskilful hands, is obviated by the use of the improved BALANCE, concerning which are the following remarks in the Journal of the Franklin Institute, of the state of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of the Mechanic Arts, for June, 1833. (Edited by Thos. P. Jones, M. D., late Superintendent of the Patent Office, at Washington, Professor of Mechanics in the Franklin Institute, &c.

"The Messrs. Fairbanks, some time since, obtained a patent for a Platform Weighing Machine, and this mode of adjuating and graduating the Beam of the Balance, and the weights, was devised by them with a view to its employment with the before mentioned machine. We have had an opportunity of examining one of their balances, and have been much pleased with it: this examination, however, was not necessary to the conviction that it possesses a just claim to the character of a real improvement, the whole arrangement being so simple as to enable any person to perceive that it is well adapted to the purpose contemplated, that of facilitating the business of weighing, and more especially of heavy articles."

The subscriber, as Agent, will receive orders for the above Scales, which will be made in this city to order. They can be seen at his Warehouse, No. 84, Front street.

Nov. 8, 1833. MOSES ATWOOD.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40
other lots, containing about			6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county---and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others--- a soil rich and productive---the neighborhood abounding in coal---well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞WELCH MEDICAMENTUM.☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer s vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

GEO. W. CARPENTER'S
COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes givingt emporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradully increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
